

Troop 777 All Wood Weekend 2010 9/17/2010

This Weekend, our troop went to Salt Fork for our annual All Wood Weekend. We left the church much earlier than we usually do and arrived early in the evening. We quickly got to our campsite and set up camp.

Camp was set up at a very quick pace and there was plenty of time to build some fires for the night and have snack.

We had our snacks and fires and went to bed warm and full.

We woke up the next morning to a chillier day than the night before, but it was very nice out. We got right to starting breakfast and the two patrols for the weekend both had eggs and sausage. The fires were built quickly and the breakfast was soon finished. The boys happily ate and sat around the fire enjoying the morning. The rest of the meal including cleanup went very smoothly, so smoothly in fact that one patrol was finished cleaning up before the adults were!

We rolled out of camp that morning and headed out to do our service project. Our troop picked up trash along the road as we made our way to the lake.

Upon arrival at the lake the first group of boys went out on the boat to go tubing. The rest of us swam in the lake or just hung around on the shore listening to the Ohio State game. The rest of the afternoon we all took our turns tubing and attacking Mr. York.

When we were finally done and headed back to camp the fun was just beginning because it was time for the Iron Chef competition. The boys were given certain ingredients and had to make something out of them that was better than the other patrol. By a very close margin the Jackie Chan and Studmuffin patrol beat the Phoenix patrol with some delicious breaded chicken. The rest of the night was left for advancement and sleeping. In the morning, the boys got up bright and early and headed back to Hudson. It was a great weekend and everyone left smiling.
